Selectmen ask Water District trustees for some answers

By REBECCA ZICARELLI

The Bethel Water District responded recently to a number of concerns raised in a letter written by Town Manager Scott Cole on behalf of the Board of Selectmen.

Cole's May 24 letter expressed concerns about four issues on which the selectmen feel they need more information; water system capacity, overall capital plan, professional engineering support, and a stance on deregulation.

John Gray, chairman of the Water District, responded to the letter on June 7. Gray has served as a trustee of the district for three years and as chair for one. He suggested that any problems between the two public entities were the result of poor communication.

His response reads: "One tenor of the letter that is apparent to me is a general tone about a lack of communication between the Board of Selectmen and the Water District Trustees or at least a lack of understanding about the priorities and responsibilities of the Water Dis-

Gray suggested a monthly meeting with a designated selectman to begin solving the communication problems. "This would hopefully keep both the town and district informed of activities and issues that have an overlapping importance or concern to both," he wrote.

Gray said his response is not necessarily the Water District's final response, but a preliminary answer that he hopes will begin an ongoing

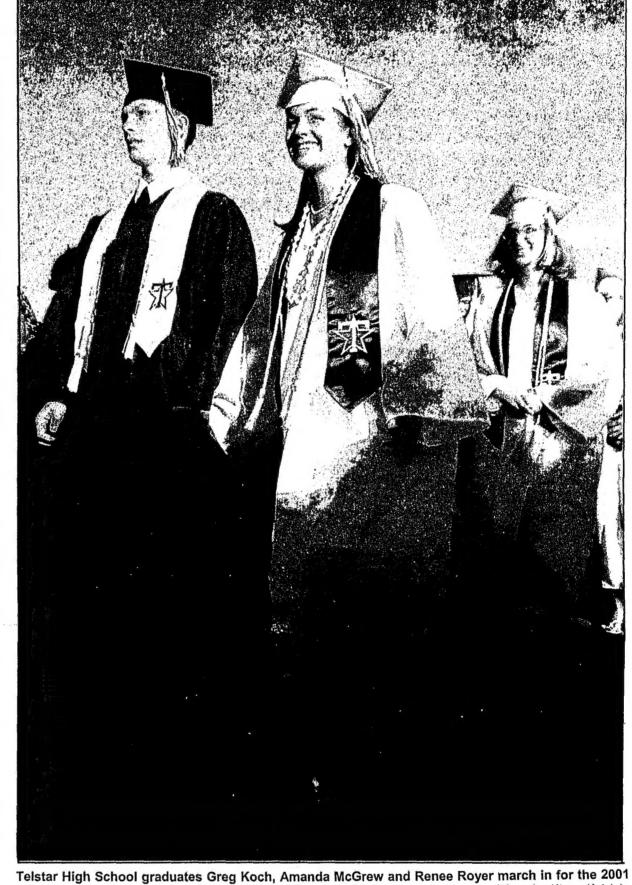

The Water District is an independent authority, created by an act of the Maine Legislature in 1967. The district provides water to residents of Bethel Village from an open-source reservoir on Chapman Brook and to residents of West Bethel from a well. The trustees are appointed to three-year terms by the Board of Selectmen.

Capacity

The board requested information about the capacity of the system. "The immediate concern here is whether or not the current system can provide adequate water for new development, residential or commercial, in Bethel," the letter states. At the trustees' request, Albert

Perfect weather made Telstar High School's first outdoor graduation since 1979 a memorable one Friday evening, as 53 graduates accepted their diplomas on the school's softball field.

The graduates marched in to "Pomp and Circumstance," performed by a school and community band. The setting sun highlighted their blue and white gowns and, for some, the gold honor banners denoting academic achievement.

The ceremony was opened by teacher Charlie Raymond. Raymond said he had been a skeptic of the plan to hold the graduation outside, but was happily proven

He told the graduates, "Take a second and breathe in this air and see those faces. Enjoy the mo-

Class member Mary Russo sang the Star Spangled Banner, and Student Council co-presidents Eric Swasey and Denise Scotti welcomed parents and friends.

They were followed by salutatorian Anna Kennett and valedictorian Tricia Hadley.

Kennett told her classmates, "The friendships made and the lives touched are treasures that we'll always carry with us ... never forget where you came from."

Hadley spoke of a conversation she had recently with her father, who told her she was now an adult. "I said, 'I won't be 18 until August," but, Hadley said, her father replied that it was not "the age you were, but the responsibility you took on that made you an adult."

"We are going to walk off this field high school graduates ... and out in the real world this makes us grownups." She also read the Judith Viorst poem, "You're Officially a

Heather Jordan and Kristen Pitcher then offered "Reflections," recounting the class's four years at Telstar. They noted several highlights, including the days of school

Village Association seeks Main Street Maine grant

Would create position of downtown manager

By ALISON ALOISIO

The Bethel Village Association is pursuing a $30,000 federal grant that would encourage economic development in the village area. At the same time, the effort would promote historic preservation.

Selectmen last week approved submitting the application to the 'Main Street Maine" program. Three grants will be awarded statewide, out of 10 applications. Most of the other municipalities are considerably larger than Bethel. They include Lewiston and Water-this month, with decisions expected sometime in September.

If approved, the grant would likely be used to hire a "downtown manager," a person to help coordinate activities.

Facets of the program, according to a guide provided by the Maine Downtown Center (which oversees the grant), include "coordinating an aggressive promotion and marketing campaign that includes a program of special events and business promotions. If it is to thrive, the downtown must improve both its self-image and the image it projects to potential customers and inves-

Design of the downtown area is another element. "Good design is essential to all aspects of downrevitalization. The Main Street design philosophy is not a 'purist' preservation approach, but one that seeks to utilize and enhance those elements of quality design that remain in each building. Good design must be extended to include promotional literature, store is now down to about 10 people. The church has operated only part of the year, relying on guest ministers and speakers.

This past weekend, some new and long-time members gathered at the church, now closed for the summer, to try to find a way to boost interest and attendance.

"We'd hate to see the church go," said member and treasurer Ed Howe, who attends with his wife, Eloise.

Howe said as a child, he first attended the Baptist Church, during a period when the UU was going through another lean time. "They got going again in the late '40s or

'50s," he said, and he began attending with his parents. The church put on frequent suppers and luncheons, often attended by workers at the nearby Stowell wood mill.

In the late 1950s and 1960s, the church offered religious education and about two dozen children took part. A children's choir even appeared on television, on Channel 6, Howe said.

But as the baby-boomers grew up, many moved away or simply lost interest in church. Older members passed away, and the church again closed for a time.

It has since made another comeback, but has been dependent on the efforts of a very few people. The departure of a couple of key members has now left the church's future uncertain.

Enter Sharon and Seabury Lyon, who moved here recently from Connecticut, where they had attended a UU church. They helped organize Sunday's meeting, which was held in place of a service.

The Lyons, who live in Bethel, were taken by the small church and want to see it survive. They also don't want to travel the distance to West Paris or Norway, where larger UU churches are located.

Sharon, who was raised Catholic but abandoned that faith following her confirmation, first attended a UU church with Seabury in Con-

IT TAKES A VILLAGE

To the Editor:

Last September, with the help of parents and community, the Bethel Pre-school was created at the Bethel United Methodist Church. Eleven boys and girls, ages three to five, participated in educational and funfilled activities. We attended the Mahoosuc Arts programs at Crescent Park Elementary School, story time at the Bethel Library, and visited the Bethel Fire Station. On Friday, June 15, the students, parents and teachers will celebrate the end of the school year with a trip to the Wild Animal Park in Gray.

Special thanks to Pastor Walter Brown and the members of the Bethel United Methodist Church who generously provided a classroom. In order to meet licensing regulations, the church made many adaptations including electrical rewiring and the installation of a fire-safe door. Thanks to Kim Shannon, who is always willing to lend a helping hand. He was quick to respond when we discovered the oil spill and worked diligently with DEP on the cleanup. Thank you to Mrs. Hope Brown, who delighted the children with songs, hand bells and harpsichord. And last, but not least, thanks to Mrs. Sylvia Clanton, volunteer from the church, who provided much-needed assistance on days when Pat or Judy could not be at school.

Thanks to everyone who made this possible. We had a wonderful year Pat Blakeslee, director/teacher; Judy Hills, teacher Bethel Pre-school

Augusta Roll Call Report

By STEVEN STYCOS

As a member of the budget writing Appropriations Committee, state Rep. Tom Winsor (R-Norway) has one of the most coveted committee assignments. But the job is difficult for the amiable legislator because it involves constant compromise.

The thirteen-member committee operates by consensus, Winsor relates, which means no one gets everything he wants. The fiscally conservative Winsor, for example, had to try to convince his fellow Republicans to support increases in the cigarette and restaurant taxes.

While inclined to oppose any tax increase, Winsor says, he pushed the committee's Democratic majority to use general revenue, instead of the Maine Rainy Day Fund for ongoing expenses. Maintaining loyalty to the Republican caucus while working toward a consensus budget has been a tough assignment this year, Winsor relates.

Appropriations Committee members are also put in an "unfair" position, Winsor says, by the Legislature's passage of more spending bills than can possibly be funded. During the session individual spending bills are passed by the House and Senate and then sent to the "Appropriations table." There they accumulate until the end of the legislative session. Then in a late flurry of activity, the Appropriations Committee decides which can be funded. The rest never become law.

This year, even assuming a 26-cent-per-pack increase in the cigarette tax and a two-percent hike in the restaurant meals tax to seven percent, the Legislature has passed $170 million more in spending bills than there is money to pay for them, Winsor relates. "There's been no discipline in the ranks," Winsor says, so the Appropriations Committee is in the difficult position of picking which bills to finance.

Regardless of this year's budget, Winsor has long-term worries about Maine's financial health. State spending is increasing faster than inflation and the Legislature is expanding eligibility for the Medicaid program at a time when medical costs are soaring. At the same time, the state's population is aging. "If that trend continues," Winsor says, "I don't know who's going to be working to pay the taxes."

"We're coming to a fiscal crossroads," he warns.

State Sen. Norman Ferguson also received a tough committee assignment this year. As the new Senate chairman of the Utilities and Energy Committee, Ferguson is responsible for one of the most complex areas of law making. In his last two-year term because of term limits, Ferguson says he has studied energy issues and has a conversational knowledge of them.

Maine people need not fear California-style blackouts, he says. "There's plenty of generation. We're not going to run out," he explains, "The only thing I'm concerned about is cost."

The committee has no plans to overhaul the state's new deregulation law, Ferguson adds."Let this settle down for two or three years and see what's happening," he advises.

Below is a summary of major roll call votes during the past month

SENATE VOTES

1. IMPORT CHEAP DRUGS: 5/15/01 vote on LD 916, sponsored by state Rep. David Lemoine (D-Old Orchard Beach), to establish a Maine program to buy drugs from foreign countries where prices are lower and then resell them to Maine wholesalers. Supporters say the bill, if okayed by the federal government, would force down drug prices. Opponents say the state should not interfere in the free market. The bill passed 27-6. State Senators Richard Bennett (R-Oxford) and Norman Ferguson (R-Oxford) voted yes.

2. DISCLOSE DRUG ADVERTISING COSTS: 5/30/01 vote on LD 1022, sponsored by state Rep. Thomas Kane (D-Saco), to require drug companies to reveal their Maine advertising costs. Kane says disclosure will show high drug costs are caused more by advertising than by research. Opponents counter the industry is being villanized and forced to reveal private business information. The bill failed 16-16. Bennett and Ferguson voted no.

3. ESTABLISH SINGLE PAYOR HEALTH SYSTEM: 5/30/01 vote on LD 1277, sponsored by state Rep. Paul Volenik (D-Brooklin), to create a single payor health care system in Maine. The Legislation declares Maine supports a single payor and establishes a committee to propose a funding system to the next legislature. Volenik says single payor will provide health care for all and cut wasteful administrative costs. Opponents say the $2 billion cost makes the proposal absurd. The bill was defeated 15-17. Bennett and Ferguson voted no.

4. REINSTATE DEATH PENALTY: 5/17/01 vote on LD 1493, sponsored by state Rep. Jay MacDougall (R-North Berwick), to have statewide referendum on restoring the death penalty for murderers of children under the age of six. Supporters say murdering small children is a heinous crime deserving the death penalty, but opponents say the death penalty is cruel and flawed. The bill was defeated 10-24. Bennett voted yes. Ferguson voted no.

5. NO GUNS FOR ACCUSED WIFE BEATERS: 5/23/01 vote on LD 1119, sponsored by state Rep. Charles Mitchell (D-Vassalboro), to enable judges to prohibit the subject of a temporary protection from abuse order from having a gun. Supporters say the bill will prevent violence by wife beaters, but opponents say firearms should not be taken away without a full hearing. The bill passed 23-11. Bennett and Ferguson voted no.

6. LABEL GENETICALLY ENGINEERED FOOD: 5/21/01 vote on LD 902, sponsored by state Rep. Paul Volenik (D-Brooklin), to require labeling of all goods containing genetically altered ingredients. Supporters say consumers have a right to know what they are eating, but opponents counter genetically engineered food has not been proven unsafe and enforcement of the labeling law would be expensive. The bill was defeated 12-18. Bennett and Ferguson voted no. A bill permitting voluntary labeling of food free of genetically modified ingredients later

HOUSE VOTES

 IMPORT CHEAP DRUGS: 5/15/01 vote on LD 916 (see Senate vote above). The bill passed 98-42. State Rep. Tom Winsor (R-Norway) voted no. State Representatives Arlan Jodrey (R-Bethel) and John Patrick (D-Rumford)

2. DISCLOSE DRUG ADVERTISING COSTS: 5/21/01 vote on LD 1022 (see Senate vote above). The bill passed 76-57. Patrick voted yes. Jodrey and Winsor voted no.

3. ESTABLISH SINGLE PAYOR HEALTH SYSTEM: 6/4/01 vote on LD 1277 (see Senate vote above). The bill passed 87-55. Patrick voted yes. Jodrey and Winsor voted no. 4. REINSTATE DEATH PENALTY: 5/16/01 vote on LD 1493 (see Senate vote above). The bill was defeated

11-29. Winsor voted yes. Jodrey and Patrick voted no. 5.NO GUNS FOR ACCUSED WIFE BEATERS: 5/16/01 vote on LD 1119 (see Senate vote above). The bill was defeated 50-89. Jodrey, Patrick and Winsor voted no. 6, LABEL GENETICALLY ENGINEERED FOOD: 5/17/01 vote on LD 902 (see Senate vote above), The bill was defeated 57-74. Patrick voted yes. Jodrey and Winsor voted no. 7. REDUCE MERCURY POLLUTION: 5/30/01 vote on LD 1665, sponsored by state Rep. Robert Duplessie (D-Westbrook), to reduce the amount of toxic mercury in consumer products. The bill requires manufacturers of mercury containing products to disclose information about the item to the state, bans the sale of mercury thermometers without a prescription and encourages the elimination of mercury from all products. Supporters say the bill will reduce toxic mercury which disrupts the human nervous system. Opponents say the bill goes too far and unnecessarily scares the public away from mercury containing products. The bill passed 94-45. Patrick voted yes. Jodrey and Winsor voted no. 8. LIMIT MANDATORY OVERTIME: 5/9/01 vote on LD 1086, sponsored by Sen. Neria Douglass (D-Androscoggin), to reduce the legal limit on mandatory overtime that can be worked in a two week period from 80 hours to 60 hours. Douglass argues forcing workers to work huge amounts of overtime is unsafe, but opponents say they know of no problems with the 80 hour law. The bill passed 89-53. Patrick voted yes, Jodrey and Winsor voted

9. STOP NURSING MANDATORY OVERTIME: 5/8/01 vote on LD 1082, sponsored by Sen. Peggy Pendelton (D-Cumberland), to prohibit a nurse from being disciplined for refusing to work mandatory overtime. Pendelton argues that nurses forced to work extra hours may make dangerous mistakes because they are so tired, but opponents say the problem is exaggerated and that mandatory overtime is a necessary last resort way to staff hospitals. The bill passed 99-43. Patrick voted yes, Jodrey and Winsor voted no.

Today is Flag Day
The flag of the United States of America was born on June 14, 1777, in Philadelphia. There the Continental Congress adopted the stars and stripes as the national flag. The 13 stripes alternating red and white, with a union of 13 white stars in a field of blue, represented a new constellation, a new nation dedicated to the personal and religious liberty of mankind. Today 50 stars signal from the union, one for each of the 50 states.

The group has received permission to review the Sox' financial records. The team was put up for sale last fall. Otten's group was one of eight allowed access to the records.

Water district

Hodsdon, the district's engineer, responded in a May 31 letter. He said that based on the town's needs for the month of April, the system was operating at 72 percent capac-

He continued: "The average daily usage in April was 130,000 gallons a day (gpd) and the system can provide 180,000 gpd (125 gallons per minute). This is not a large excess capacity. This excess capacity further dwindles in the winter when there is lots of snow. The water usage goes up especially for the school vacation week. At that time, the excess capacity may be about 20 percent. Of course this can be adversely affected if there are heavy rains during that same week and the source has to be isolated temporarily." (Heavy rains increase turbidity in the water beyond acceptable limits.)

Hodsdon did not mention system capacity at other times of the year.

He indicated that the cost of increasing capacity for the current source is about a million dollars. He suggested that it would be prudent — and half as expensive — to go to a high-quality and highcapacity ground-water source. rather than attempting to upgrade the present surface water system.

"The cost of such an upgrade should be covered for the most part by the customers who are now creating the new demand," Hodsdon's letter continued, "This policy has been followed through the use of contract agreement with new large customers.

Overall capital plan

The selectmen's letter also said coordination of road, sewer, and water capital improvements be handled in such a way that residents get the most benefit for the least cost.

The water lines were extended up Paradise Road five years ago, when the town was in the middle of building the sewer treatment plant and was not ready to tackle additional work. The water lines were laid, but the sewer lines were not. Since that time, the surface of Paradise Road has been a rough and crumbling patchwork. Now the town is ready to dig up the road again to extend the sewer lines. The road will be repayed when the work is finished.

A similar situation might have happened this summer, when the town planned to replace the sewer lines servicing Clark Street. According to Cole, the street is in need of repaving, and the water lines need to be upgraded, as well.

The Water District is not financially able to replace the Clark Street water lines at this time, according to Gray, because the district is focusing on other priorities.

"The end result is that the residents on Clark Street are going to have an inferior sewer line as well as an inferior street because of the poor planning of the district," Cole

The Water District's letter to the board did not address capital planning. Hodsdon's letter, however, said, "In the past, the district has always tried to dovetail its work with the town's, provided the district had the funds to participate. I believe the district still operates with that intention in mind. Better communication can always help in

Cole agreed that communication is key. "Projects like this don't happen in a day or two. Where was the district when they were planning the Paradise project? They had months to get the town on board, and the town had months to respond. Everyone dropped the ball. Communication goes both ways."

Engineering

The work on Paradise Road brought to light the selectmen's third concern: the Water District's engineering support. The Town Office did not have copies of the engineering drawings of the work, known as "as-builts." After reviewing Cole's letter, Hodsdon has since provided those documents to the town.

The letter suggests that this type of information be centralized and available to the town and Water District at all times. The letter also suggests that it would behoove the town and district to use the same engineering firm, since the assets of both are located in the public rights of way. It is most cost effective if improvements are made at the same

The Water District also refrained from responding to this concern, but Hodsdon did.

"This information is copyrighted information owned by us," Hodsdon's letter said. "The district and the town can have as many copies of this as they wish. However, there is a cost if any other organization wants to use this data for further commercial activity. It is simply cur property and subject to copyright protection."

Hodsdon explained to the Citizen that the information was generated by his company after going through a competitive bidding process. "We are not in the business of supplying our competitors with our work," he said. He also pointed out that he did engineering for both the town and the district until the mid-1990s. Madeline Henley, town manager at the time, dropped him as the town's engineer. Soon after, his firm sued the town, the Water District, and Bethel Station Partners over work done at Bethel Station.

The law suit was over unpaid costs for some of the engineering of Bethel Station water lines. According to Cole, it was ultimately resolved through arbitration, and the town was found to be not liable for

Cole said, "The battle went on for several years, with substantial legal costs, I believe in excess of $20,000, and substantial staff time to compile information. It's outrageous that the town was drawn into that battle."

Deregulation

The selectmen's final question was regarding LD 1333, a bill in the Legislature that would allow local water districts to opt out of regulation by the Public Utilities Commission (PUC). The PUC currently oversees the district and sets the rates charged to ratepayers.

The district trustees, Gray, John Head, and Joe Drummond, opposed the bill. According to Gray, PUC oversight gives the district a set of operating guidelines that are useful for such a small entity.

Currently, the bill has passed the House of Representatives but is stalled in the Senate.

Cole said he believes residents of Bethel would be better served by a utility that was a department of town government, as the sewer treatment plant is. "That allows you to streamline all your planning under the direction of the Board of Selectmen, the town's elected representatives," he said.

Gray said that the district has faithfully delivered clean, safe water to residents of Bethel Village and West Bethel for many years under the existing system. "Our goal is high-quality water at a reasonable rate for the rate payers."

window and merchandise displays, public building improvements and street amenities.

Also included is economic restructuring, an effort to restore elements a main street may have lost over past decades. That goal would be accomplished by "attracting new retail and non-retail functions, including office, recreation services and residential uses," the guide said.

"The Maine Downtown Center wants to help downtown stakeholders revitalize their downtowns to the point where they are the first choice for shopping, living, socializing, learning, relaxing and doing business.

"This approach advocates a return to community self-reliance, empowerment, and the rebuilding of commercial districts based on traditional assets: unique architecture, personal service, local ownership and a sense of community."

The BVA has been discussing potential involvement in the federally funded program for more than two years, and members have attended conferences on the subject. The grant project would support efforts by businesses and individuals, rather than direct them. For that reason, Black said, she was hesitant to give specific examples or ideas for the use of the money in Bethel.

She said some improvements that have already taken place on Main Street follow the philosophy of the grant.

If Bethel received a grant, the funding would stretch over three years. BVA would also seek local in-kind donations to support the project. As for donations from the town itself, Black said such funding, "would be nice," but the organizers are not assuming that sort of participation, at least not initially. The group has received a $500 donation from the Bethel Rotary Club,

Black said there has been a positive reaction to the grant plan from many businesses.

The project is not just about Main Street, Black emphasizes. "To make this all work, we need to involve the schools, the churches, everyone," she said. The goal is to "market Main Street to make it prosper, and bring commerce to the surrounding area.

And if Bethel is not one of the grant recipients?

Grant applications may be submitted each year, said Bob Laux, BVA's coordinator, so Bethel could reapply.

Like Black, Laux said revitalizing the village and main street area of a town can have a ripple effect. After Littleton, N.H., made improvements through a similar grant, an industrial park was established because of the increased appeal of the town, he said.

Information on the statewide effort can be found at www.mdf.org/downtown.

Church philosophy

Unitarian-Universalist church as a whole has been growing slowly since 1978, according to Roger Comstock, the church's district executive, who traveled from Portland Sunday to meet with the group. That trend runs counter to many mainstream faiths, he said, which are finding their overall membership shrinking.

The church does not dictate a particular creed and leaves its members free to believe as they choose. The UU organization resulted from the merger of separate and Universalist Unitarian churches. Both are rooted in Christian tradition. Today, the church continues its dedication to Christian values without necessarily emphasizing the faith's literal interpretations, Comstock said.

While the church's philosophy is drawing more people in populated areas, the dwindling membership in small rural communities is not un-Where will the Bryant Pond

Comstock said he can explore the possibility of bringing retired UU ministers from the region to speak and help with a church program. It would be ideal, he said, to have one person serve in a regular capacity, to focus the congregation's efforts. With a very small budget, the church must pay on a per-Sunday

An effort will also be made to organize a religious education program for children.

The church will reopen Sept. 9. Comstock volunteered to give the first sermon himself, if arrangements for a minister cannot be made before then. "No matter what, we will have a service," said Lyon. As the larger organization does what it can to get someone in the pulpit, the local members are looking for potential new members.

Joan Howe was in Thursday. She brought me white cheddar cheese crackers. She had a lot of sympathy for me and a hug, too. She really cheered me up.

Bud Howe visited with Albert Raymond on Thursday.

Some of you may want to know when visiting hours are here. I have seen visitors as early as 7 a.m. and I have had some evening visitors stay until a little after 7.

Don't see how I can make it home for a while yet. My arm still gives me a lot of trouble and I have to use my walker so much.

Keep the cards coming and come visit when you can. Vada said time would go by fast. Well it sure makes a difference whether you are able to be about a lot or in a nursing home and unable to get around much. If only the food were better here it would not be quite so bad.

Now that the rains have abated, it's time for outside work. I can find about ten jobs that need to be done, yesterday, including working on the car, planting the garden, raking and mowing the lawn near Tasha's holes. Now if I can just find the time and the energy to do them all.

Last weekend saw many things happening. The Bethel Library plant sale was rather wet, but filled with many nice plants and people. I hope that the rain didn't deter people. It certainly didn't look like it did, but I must admit that I didn't stick around long.

I attended the farewell party for Rodney Abbott and Sherry Higgins. It was well attended by teachers and administrators from their past. Many people said nice things about these two good teachers. They will be sorely missed and hard acts to follow.

Graduation went off well, so I am told. I crashed way too early that day after a full day. It's sad to think that 7 p.m. is too late for me. I really am a morning person and staying out late for an ITV class is hard on my 5 a.m. body.

This week, I have noticed many new flowers. Although the strawberry blossoms do not seem to be turning into too many strawberries, there are new, bright yellow buttercups and a new purple flower that I am not certain of what it is. The stalk is tallish without much depth. Maybe someone else can name it

I spent a good part of the weekend either studying or working on the car. I still am dotted with bits of fiberglass that will just have to wear off because I am not using acetone on my skin. It does make my fingernails look a little dirty, so don't look too carefully. At least the car looks inspectable so I can stop being pulled over by Bethel's finest and the "staties." By the time you read this, my car will be legal and, hopefully, I will have a buyer for the Grape.

In any case, I got to spend much of the beautiful weekend outdoors. I even managed to do my reading outside. The paper I wrote, however, had to be typed and printed indoors.

Sunday, a crew of Outward Bound marathoners passed me on my morning walk. Barbara explained, as she was running by us, that they were on staff training. Tasha only jumped on the first guy, who was very good about it and definitely ahead of the pack. Some were doing more wailing than running and others were right into it. I would have been of the former, even when I could run, I couldn't run that far. Every once and awhile I miss running. Then I try and take only a short distance and remember why I no longer run. I do walk, though, and I am glad I can usually still do that.

Sunday also gave way to intermittent showers. There may even have been a spot of hail thrown in. The thunder was loud enough in the afternoon to make me jump while on a walk. Tasha took it in stride. I was amazed since she is not that nonchalant at home.

A new improved turkey sign has sprouted by Ed and Julie's house, I hope that means they have been seeing the turkeys. I have not, but I shall start walking down there and looking. Now that I will be teaching less, I will have time, I hope to visit and to get my garden in. That is my goal for the week, as well as finding a summer job. So far I have been quite unsuccessful.

Richard Grover Lately it seems that each weekend is busier than the one before. It seems like I'll have to retire again, just to catch up on all the "volunteering stuff."

Last weekend got started on Friday with a dental appointment at 8 a.m. in Rumford, followed by a 10 a.m. appointment in Farmington to get our new truck wired for our camper. From there we drove to Oquossoc, where we set up the camper in the driveway of Norm and Gail Weston's camp for the weekend. Then, it was "Col. Weston's" deep-fat-fried chicken, along with Gail's tossed and Mona's potato salads. This was followed by an evening's relaxation with drinks, conversation, and, of course, roasted marshmallows over the open campfire.

Snuffy added entertainment with his antics with "fetch" and "keep away," chewed firewood and "in your face" frolicking with whom-ever would allow it. Saturday found us fishing in Norm's boat, where he got me into position to reel in a nice two-pound brook trout. This was followed by "boys against girls" cribbage, where, of course, the boys took two out of three. Another evening of campfire activities ensued.

Sunday, it was get packed up and go home early enough to shower and get to a 2 p.m. picnic with our 40 & 8 group in Peru. Then, it was "go home early" enough to get ready for Monday and the start of another week, which promises to be just as busy as the previous one,

When I was quite young, I thought middle age was a million years away. In fact, I used to think middle age was quite old. Now that I qualify as middle-aged I've changed all my thinking on the subject. I try not to think about it at all!

It's a hard thing to put totally out of your mind because so many changes are taking place every day that remind you that you are now middle-aged. Though putting things out of my mind comes pretty easy to me these days since my

I once strived to stay in shape. believed that staying in shape would keep me young. I still believe in staying in shape, but I've decided that my shape is oval and since I'm all ready there I don't have to work too hard at it. It's amazing how we justify things to accommodate middle age.

Going to the doctor for an annual physical is a different expewonder why rience, too. I always hated having school. Ogden Nash once said "Middle age is when you've met so many people that every new person reminds you of someone else." I think that's true because just about everyone reminds me of someone else, I just can't remem-

There are two shocking events that happen when you reach middle age. One is the first time you hear someone refer to you as that "older person." The second is when you run into someone you haven't seen in a long time and are startled to see how much they have aged, then realize they are the same age as you, no doubt, thinking the same thing about you.

The way I see it, middle age has its merits. I'm wiser, calmer and more accepting than in my youth. Things don't upset me the way they used to. I'm not even that concerned about old age because it's many years away. Even as it gets closer, I think it will always be at least 15 years older than whatever age I currently am.

with the state 40 & 8 and American Legion conventions in Lewiston on Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

In other news, a couple weeks ago Dianne Merrill told the following story about her three-year-old niece, Madison Flynn, and her baby sister, Lucy. It happened that Madison's mom, Eileen, had to return to work and leave the two girls in a daycare center daily. This particular daycare keeps the infants in an area separate from the older kids. One day at lunchtime, one of the attendant ladies invited Madison to visit Lucy in the infant care area. When they got there, Lucy happened to be fussing some. Madison looked at the attending girl and said, "What's the matter with Lucy? She never cries when she is at home." The girl said, "She's not really crying. She's just fussing a little because she's hungry." Madison replied, "Well, you've got breasts like my mom, why don't you feed her?

Frank Morrison said it was not his sign but it was his post, and he would like to see it replaced. There were mixed reactions around town about the commercially produced sign that was placed one week before in the center of Hanover Village by persons unknown and seemed to rename the town it might be said that it was the talk of the town in Gordie Howe's Store, A woman said that if they have all that money to waste on a loke then they should do something good for the children in town. A man said that if he knew who sawed off the post he would like to buy him a new saw. Another fellow said it was only a joke. The sign reappeared, nailed to a tree, at the intersection of Howard Pond Road and South Shore Road, by the middle of the week.

The second annual Hanover Campover was Saturday, June 2, at Stony Brook Campground. Due to the very bad weather that weekend, the turnout was described as light, but those there had a great time. Another Hanover Campover may be scheduled in the fall with the hope of better weather.

Over the past few years I have amassed quite a rock collection, I have rocks from every state in the union, parts of Canada, England, France, Spain, Germany, and of course Harvard Yard. I have a piece of the Berlin Wall, a rock from Jim Morrison's grave in Paris, a rock that Pope John Paul blessed, a piece of the Wailing Wall in Jerusalem, and now, thanks to my friend Jane Chandler, I have a rock from Mongolia. Jane's daughter is in the Peace Corps in Mongolia, and last month Jane and her husband had the chance to visit, and because of this I got a really great addition to my collection. Now if anybody is going to Gibraltar, I'd really like a piece of that rock.

Ever since I was a little girl, a long, long time ago, I have always thought of the "square" in Andover Village as being a mile long. In fact, that's what it's called, the Mile Square. Recently, a friend and I have started walking the "mile square." I'm doing this so I won't be the only fat lady at the upcoming wedding. Once around the square, one mile, twice around, two, and since I think walking is just as much fun as a root canal, I have felt very proud of my sacrifice. I am heartbroken and feel very badly to have to tell all of you this, but on Thursday I found out that the damn square is only nine-tenths am one of the very last people in the world to know this well-kept secret. Do you have any idea, what this does to me? I now have to figure out how long one-tenth of a mile is and add it to my walks: It really doesn't look good; as-I barely passed any math class Lever had to take.

And while I'm on the subject of Andover geographic misinformation, do you know that Back Street really isn't Back Street? Somehow over the years it got changed into Pine Street. I can't believe all this - is Ellis River really called Ellis River? Is East Andover really: East Andover?

by Eleanor LeComte June 14th is Flag Day, As a child I had less than patriotic thoughts about it being a special day. It was the last day of school and it ranked up there with Christmas and the Fourth of July. We also found out on this day if we got promoted to the next grade of school. It was definitely a day of childish mixed emotions. Our kids will be "set free" for the summer this week. I hope they enjoy it to the fullest extent.

Two Upton students are members of the 2001 graduating class at Telstar. We send congratulations and best wishes to Jennifer Davenport and Nicolas Lavallee.

We are very proud of Elissa Dyer, our "homeschooler," who traveled with her mother, Brenda, to the University of Maine at Orono to accept an inscribed trophy for being one of the top readers in the M.S. Readathon. Elissa placed fourth, having read 117 books. She also raised $213 for M.S. and received a $20 gift certificate to KayBee Toys and a "M.S. Readathon 2001 Official Completion Certificate." It doesn't end there; she also won a coupon for a free pizza at Pizza Hut. Elissa is a great little girl who puts her heart into everything she does, Congratulations, Elissa.

I have a few date corrections from the Ladies Aid. The Yard and Bake Sale will be held July 14. The annual Craft Sale will be held on August 9. It was a "brainburp." I had the dates wrong last week.

I have another correction, (I'm slipping fast). My neighbor and wildlife expert Jen Casey said I'm me a moose with her baby had just been there and was heading in our direction. She could hear the dogs barking, so she figured they must be nearly here. Unfortunately, we were not home to see them. I wonder where they went to, as the path peters out at the end of our property. Of course, they can take the bridge to get to the woods behind Ken's, but some animals don't like to cross bridges. But somehow I can't imagine a moose worrying about that. Their attitude seems to be "you worry," sometimes to their detriment.

Then there was this great commotion going on outside one day last week. I looked out the kitchen window, which some dear soul had thoughtfully put in a large picture one looking right onto the pond, and saw a mother mallard swimming past as fast as she could go, which caused eight small babies to flap the little wings they had and move their little feet as fast as they could skimming along the top of the water with great commotion. She paraded them up and then back and then disappeared into Round Pond, and I haven't seen them since. I think she read my column, where I said there were no babies this year and wanted me to know that there were.

And just to make me seem dumb, this morning there was another mother, the one with the yellow bill, with three babies who are already feathered out and are almost half grown. She must have had those in a snow bank - well, not that bad but May was such a cold, wet month for a while there she did well to hatch any.

I didn't think the blackbirds in the tree nest were ready to bring out young, as I did not see any great flurry of activity as there usually is when they are feeding chicks. However, either I was wrong or for some reason they

This morning the sky is a vast blue bowl, its edges resting on the horizon. Up among the slopes there is the sound of brooks, little cascades falling over shelves of rock down to the final level of the pond.

An old road winds its way into the forest and on to the farm fields. Here, I saw the groundhog's burrow. He, no doubt, was out enjoying the freshness of the day.

In these fields still stand the lilacs of many years' growth. These lilacs show where houses once stood many years ago.

The lilac is not a native of America or even of England but came to New England early with some of the earliest colonists. Lilacs originated, or at least grew, long, long ago in Persia and other parts of the Near East. Most of them became known in the West soon after the Crusades. That's when lilacs were known first in England. By the time

The Bethel Library's annual Perennial Plant Sale was the usual great success despite rain, gloom and bugs. All the hardy Maine gardeners came to the gazebo and brought and bought plants. This fundraiser has become a real Bethel tradition. Bethel Historical Society's Regional History Center

Alice Arlen, biographer of the famed regional and Maine writer Louise Dickinson Rich, was the featured speaker at the second of the Bethel Historical Society's 2001 Lecture Series held on June 7 at the society's Dr. Moses Mason House Exhibit Hall. Ms. Arlen discussed how she came to write the book, "She Took to the Woods," inspired by Rich's best-selling, "We Took to the Woods." She described her research trail and how having the name Alice helped open doors from family members since there were so many Alices in Mrs. Rich's life. Her fortune in obtaining so many primary sources helped make the book the popular success it has

She showed some slides of some of the locations important to Mrs. Rich and described how she dealt with the complexity of her subject's personality and storytelling abilities. She also read passages of Mrs. Rich's prose that were not quoted in the book or that did not appear as

Following her lecture, Ms. Arlen autographed copies of her book. Punch and cookies were also served for those wishing to visit with the biographer.

EDWARD MARTIN

Dr. Edward Martin, 73, died Tuesday, June 5, 2001. Dr. Martin ("Doc" as his lifelong patients liked to call him) was born in Mexico, on Jan. 8, 1928, and named Joseph Edward Martin. His parents, Louise Campbell McCafferty and Joseph Agape Martin, raised him in the town that he lived and worked in for most of his lifetime.

He considered himself a hometown boy, graduating from Mexico High School in the Class of 1945. That high school diploma always hung in his medical office. He was proud of his class and clung to those friendships made early in his lifetime. "Eddie," as his early lifetime friends called him, played football for his alma mater and from there was awarded a full tuition scholarship to Colby College in Waterville.

In Memory of Elizabeth Bailey June 16th

Its been two years since you went away. But your love and memories are here to stay. It hasn't been the same since you left us that day. There were a lot of tears when you went away. But now we have the memories of all the great times we've shared. And how much you loved us and cared. I know it wasn't easy at the end. We lost a very special person and a great friend. We miss your hugs and your gentle touch. Just remember we love and miss you very much.

His college days were interrupted by World War II and a hitch in the U.S. Navy led him to be stationed at Pearl Harbor in 1947. He became a pilot at the age of 15 daring to pilot his airplane under both the Memorial Bridge and the Morrison Bridge. His lifelong dream of becoming a fighter pilot changed as the war ended. He finished his tour of duty and returned to Colby to finish his studies.

It was during the last of his Colby years that Eddie caught the eye of the college dean. A simple phone call and an interview would catapult this young man, a regular guy, with an outstanding academic record, to an interview and acceptance as a medical student to the University of Vermont College of Medicine.

Dr. Martin recognized the need in Maine for family physicians. His greatest mentor, Dr. Elsworth Amidon, from the College of Medicine, instilled in this young physician the basic need to care for patients at the entry level of care. It was his calling and he accepted it willingly.

He completed his internship at Central Maine Medical Center and was recruited to the Jay-Livermore Falls area where he practiced for a number of years.

But, he was interested in practicing medicine in his hometown. He returned to the Rumford-Mexico area where he gave nearly 40 years of service to those people he loved best - his hometown.

It was during that time that he delivered 2,500 of the Rumford-Mexico area's finest babies and sat many nights and weekends helping his old-time patients live and die. With several five-generation families still in his practice when he retired, he embodied the art of family practice. He loved his patients, and they loved him.

He was a champion of the underdog. His many known challenges to the paper companies and their toxic waste dumping are legendary. He became known as the outspoken physician who was the centerpiece for the TV documentary "Cancer Valley."

During his tenure at the Rumford Community Hospital, Dr. Martin served on many committees. He was public health officer for the towns of Rumford and Mexico for many years and was a pilot and an FAA physician offering a service to area pilots that was unique for its time. He was co-founder and medical director of the Cozy Inn Nursing Home (now known as the Rumford Community Home) recognizing the need for elderly care in his community.

He was a history buff. That interest led him to explore the world of art and antiques. For many years he ran an antique shop and was well known throughout the state as a most knowledgeable art antique dealer. documentation of the Jonathan Bartlett resulted in a comprehensive reference of this Rumford artist's life in book form and led him to study and complete a second book on the Abenaki Indians of this state. The second book, called "Thunder from the Mountains," is a historical novel about the Abenaki Indians.

Perhaps he best loved the discovery of the history of the Acadians. It was through this historical pathway that he came to know the history of his Martin ancestors and that led him on a journey that would change his life. He documented many of the events in his life and those of his patients through the medium of poetry. It wasn't unusual for him to stop in the middle of a patient's history and document an idea that would lead to a poetic verse at a later time.

He was the founder of the Acadian Society of the area and functioned as its advisor for many

In 1992, the Maine Labor Group on Health awarded him the prestigious Health and Safety Advocacy Award for outstanding efforts to improve Maine's Workplaces and Communities.
